Specification

The examiner has not checked the specification to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors (grammatical, typographical and idiomatic). Cooperation of the applicant(s) is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant(s) may become aware of in the specification, in the claims and in any future amendment(s) that applicant(s) may file.

Applicant(s) is also requested to complete the status of any copending applications referred to in the specification by their Attorney Docket Number or Application Serial Number, if any.

The status of the parent application(s) and/or any other application(s) cross-referenced to this application, if any, should be updated in a timely manner.

Oath/Declaration

The oath or declaration is defective. A new oath or declaration in compliance with 37 CFR 1.67(a) identifying this application by application number and filing date is required. See MPEP §§ 602.01 and 602.02.

The oath or declaration is defective because:
Non-initialed and/or non-dated alterations have been made to the oath or declaration. See 37 CFR 1.52(c).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Art Unit: 1755

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US 6,425,949 to Lemaitre et al.

The instantly claimed invention involves a bone cement material comprising calcium phosphate powder and another powdered component, the combination of which in water increases the zeta potential of the suspended particles of the powdered materials.

Lemaitre et al. are relied upon for the disclosure of bone cement materials that are bimodal mixed powdered materials, substantially as claimed in the instant application. There is no substantive difference between the instantly claimed cement material and the disclosure of Lemaitre et al. except the failure of Lemaitre et al to discuss the zeta potential of the cement materials. However, the examiner takes the position that the instantly claimed composition would have been obvious because the reference discloses bimodal powder mixtures in combination with a setting rate controller material. This component is equivalent to the zeta potential increasing additive of the instantly claimed material. It is also the same as the material being employed by applicant, i.e. a citrate material. Accordingly, Lemaitre et al. achieve the same result claimed in the instant claims by applicant because they employ the same materials recited by applicant in the instant claims. See particularly column 3 and the examples.

Art Unit: 1755

Any minor differences in the limitations of the dependent claims have been considered. This statement is meant to include limitations such as claims specifically reciting "citric acid": It is pointed out that both citric acid and the citrate of the reference will release citrate ions, which are responsible for setting rate control. It is further pointed out that such acid materials are notoriously well known in the field of cements as setting rate controllers (retarders, water reducers) and this is fairly shown by a large number of the prior art documents of record in this application. There is nothing unobvious in the substitution of one substance (citrate) for another (citric acid) when both are known to have the same function.

Furthermore, any such differences are deemed to be result-effective variables that one of ordinary skill in the art would be expected to manipulate to advantage. Additionally, such limitations can be considered to have been simply known as conventional to the artisan practicing in the art at the time the invention was made and/or were common practices which were so well known in the art that they would have been taken for granted. If applicant believes that one or more limitations are critical to the invention, then applicant should amend the claims to reflect such critical limitations as well as indicate where in the specification such critical limitations were discussed and demonstrated.

The limitations of all claims have been considered and are deemed to be within the purview of the prior art.

Art Unit: 1755

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Applicants are advised that any evidence to be provided under 37 CFR 1.131 or 1.132 and any amendments to the claims and specification should be submitted prior to final rejection to be considered timely. It is anticipated that the next office action will be a final rejection.
